

A SEAT AT THE TABLE

INTRODUCING OUR PUBLIC FUNDRAISING CAMPAIGN: “A SEAT AT THE TABLE.”

Help us furnish our new Frank Lloyd Wright inspired building.
Each piece of furniture represents the many lives that we will continue to change each day through our mission of empowering children with dyslexia, along with their parents, teachers and community.

A seat at the table – that is all Katie wanted and expected when she started school. Little did she, Stan or I know that obtaining that seat would entail a 10-year battle involving self-sacrifice, tenacity, thousands of miles of travel and deep pockets. Why? Because Katie is one of the 1 in 5 who is dyslexic, but our state of Kansas has refused to identify it or recognize it as a learning disability. These students have not qualified for IEPs nor have their teachers known how to teach a child with dyslexia to read.

Katie entered kindergarten with the expectation that now she would join her older sisters and brother with a seat at the table...she would learn to read! Sadly, it was not to be. As Stan and I desperately looked for answers, as her teachers' efforts were failing, we discovered touted methods of teaching a child to read suggested by Kansas educators and doctors...they included learning to juggle, re-learning how to crawl and vision therapy...none gave Katie that seat she needed.

Finally, a third grade teacher who had moved to Wichita from Texas, suggested that Katie might be dyslexic. We could find no one in Kansas who knew anything about dyslexia and certainly no one who could test for it, so began the first of many, many trips out of state to find answers. The first answer came in the form of diagnosis...profoundly dyslexic...and from there the journey began to find the services needed to provide for Katie that seat she needed for academic success.

A SEAT AT THE TABLE

We sent a wonderful educator, Mrs. Pangrac to Texas to learn to work with Katie four mornings a week at 7 a.m., which she did through seventh grade. Additionally, Katie spent four years at summer camps in North Carolina and New York State doing intensive remediation, and finally, beginning in eighth grade, she spent two years at a boarding school, Killdonan in Amenia, N.Y. that was geared toward total emersion in learning to read and focusing on the dyslexic student. After two years in N.Y., her teachers agreed that she was ready to be mainstreamed as a sophomore in high school, BUT with accommodation...that was not to be had in Kansas. Katie claimed her academic seat at Brewster Academy in Wolfeboro, N.H. from which she graduated with honors.

When we put Katie on the plane to travel to Killdonan as an eighth grader to begin the boarding school experience, I swore that if there was anything I could do to prevent this from being the only alternative for a bright, tenacious, dyslexic child to learn to read, write and spell, it would be my life's mission. Three years later, I met Jeanine Phillips and ultimately the Phillips Fundamental Learning Center was born.

Please help us keep our super-powered dyslexic students in Kansas.
Please help provide them *a seat at the table!

A seat at a PFLC table will transform many lives!

We hope you will enjoy viewing our new building, room by room... each carefully thought out with children, teachers and parents in mind.

As you flip through the pages, enjoy the story of Piper, a 2023 graduate of Rolph Literacy Academy. Piper entered our program as a 5-year-old who first attended public school. She is the granddaughter of RLA teacher, Miss Tammi, and the daughter of a mother also with dyslexia, Kelsi.

After her very first parent-teacher conference, where the teacher had nothing positive to say, Piper is now a thriving 11-year-old who will attend Faith Academy in the fall. Enjoy her journey in the following pages, and consider a gift to help more children, teachers and parents, like Piper, Tammi and Kelsi, gain a seat at the table.

The face behind the vision

“After 30 years of advocacy, we can now say dyslexia is recognized in the state of Kansas! We are excited for our new Frank Lloyd Wright inspired building, and we know that it will put a star on the map for dyslexia!” — Jeanine Phillips

How you can give:

Whether it's a single chair, six chairs, or an entire classroom, a gift at any capacity is appreciated. We will honor your gift by placing your name or honoree on the items you purchase so that the countless individuals we serve will know who has supported them on their journey with PFLC.

“In the first week that (Piper) came to RLA, she had changed. She was telling us about what she was learning. She was showing us what her name looked like in cursive. She was using words like rectangular prism and she could identify it in the objects of the house. She told me what a plateau was. It was really evident from early on that there was nothing wrong with Piper. There was something wrong with the instruction for her, and she just needed to be taught in a different way.” — Tammi Hope

“I know that some of the things that Piper has gained (at RLA), she would not have gained in a traditional environment. RLA really works to empower her through the struggle. So the focus has never been about what she can't do, but what she can. We wouldn't have the powerhouse of the individual that we have now, who can clearly see the balance of strengths and weaknesses and recognize, 'I do have some weaknesses, but these are my strengths and there are lots of them.'” — Tammi Hope

The Mission Center of PFLC.

Everyone who helps in our mission here needs a place to base their work. Talented individuals who have gained the skills to teach children with dyslexia to read, write and spell will call this workplace home. Executive, accounting, marketing, community outreach and grant proposal personnel with a passion for our mission will reside and help propel us forward from here.

“Everything about the design of the school is designed with the profile of a student with dyslexia in mind... their specific giftedness. I don't know what's going to happen, because (the kids) thrive where we are. What's going to happen when they are unleashed in an environment that's designed for them? That's going to be exciting and explosive.” — Tammi Hope
